Knoxville-based Courthouse Retrieval System Acquires Competitor

Knoxville, Tennessee, 08/07/08 – Courthouse Retrieval System, Inc (CRS) a leading provider of web-based property tax data for realtors, investors, appraisers and retail businesses in the US, announced today that it has acquired 100% of Realty EYES, a division of InfoCode.

Based in Nashville TN, Realty EYES provided property tax records and tax maps for customers in Tennessee. This acquisition strengthens CRS's position as a leading tax record information provider by increasing our customer base in Tennessee.

According to Courthouse Retrieval System President, John Lutz, "This acquisition will benefit CRS customers as well as Realty EYES customers as we integrate Realty EYES components into the CRS Real Estate PowerTool to give our customers a superior product."

Jim McLeod, CEO of InfoCode says, "This will be very beneficial to Realty EYES customers. The combination of our products and staff will bring a higher level of service. InfoCode is excited about the enhanced customer care CRS brings with a fully staffed technical support staff and training department."

The acquisition is effective immediately. The company will be headquartered at 341 Troy Circle in Knoxville, TN. Employees at both businesses will be retained.
